Subject :- driving attention towards reckless bike siding.

Sir,

Through the columns of your esteemed newspaper, I want to draw your kind attention towards the reckless and rash driving bikes by the teenagers in Ranchi city. The teenagers are riding bikes in very high speed. They are even not following the traffic rules. The teenagers are not wearing helmets, they even don't have their driving license. Most of the teenagers are the college students of 15-18 yrs age.

This age is full of danger and is termed as the most critical age of our life. The ones who are protecting themselves in this age are the only ones who are choosing right path of success. The reckless driving has become a serious problem for the people as the accidents have become common, moreover, the teenagers are disturbing the teenagers girls by playing horns unnecessarily. This is an anti-social element which has become a serious problem.

The higher authorities must take some step to short-out this problem soon. The traffic police officers must be made strict about the rules. The teenagers must not be allowed to ride bikes until they are 18. They must be punished strictly for breaking the rules.

I, hope you will help to short-out this problem, and bring this serious problem in the notice of higher authorities.

Thanking You!

Your's Faithfully
XYZ.

Save Water - by Ragini

'Save water, secure future', the quote appears to be quite true for us these days. The availability of this precious resource has shortened with the duration of time. Water the element which we use in our daily life for our each and every need, either it is cooking or drinking.

'Water is life', this is true as for our survival it is must. We may survive without food for a week or more but without water we cannot live more than two days. Water is the need of everyone from dawn to night. Our every small work cooking, bathing, washing, drinking needs water. But what we all do is just the wastage of water. We all just waste it for our benefits for our luxuries. A large amount of water is wasted in washing clothes. People use more than they need. In the place of using a bucket of water they use two bucket for washing clothes. The taps are left open during the teeth brushing or during washing face. Moreover people are cementing the floors to beautify their veranda and homes which stops the percolation of rain water into ground. This has made the ground water level to go down and the people are facing water scarcity. People use more than they require which has led to this serious problem of scarcity. A time will come when there will be no water left for human use, the main problem for this is pollution, which is increasing day by day people are unable to use the polluted water which is the result of their own works. Water pollution has led to the transformation of rivers into dirty drains. If this problem is not sorted out soon then the water resource for human use will become extinct and because of which human will also become extinct.

Water is the most precious gift of god, Every drop of water is important we must save it and must not waste it because its protection is our protection and nothing in the world is more precious than one's life.

The chapter 'Lost Spring' written by 'Anees Jung' describes about the two children Sahab-e-Alam and Mukesh who belonged an economically backward family. She has compared the age of two boys with the spring season as it is the best season and the childhood age is also the best one. Their childhood is lost while working for their life livelihood and therefore the title is Lost Spring.

She describes about Sahab-e-Alam a small boy who lived in Seemapuri a slum area in Delhi. Shah Sahab was a ragpicker. He and his friends did ragpicking to get two times meals for which they failed sometimes. Sahab's family also did the same job. They were the refugees who came from Bangladesh to earn some money but they were now compelled to do ragpicking for their survival. Ragpicking for them was a good task. They loitered on the roads and picked rags from the heaps.

The heaps of garbage was like a goldmine for them as sometimes they get some precious things from it. They whole day they wandered here and there barefoot and picked the garbage which they kept on their bags which they took on their backs.

The life of ragpickers was very pathetic as after a long walking and wondering here and there they got some stuffs and earned two times meals. They even slept sometimes without eating. The life was full of suffering.

11 Ans In the story Should Wizard Hit Mommy? , written by John Updike, Jo wanted the story to end with the hitting of Mommy by Wizard. Jo was the daughter of Jack and Jack used to tell her stories which consisted of a common character named Roger. Jack told her a story in which Roger was a skunk who had very bad smell and therefore no one was ready to play with him but when Roger went to the wizard

The Wizard gave him the smell of roses. Roger was very happy and now everyone became his friend. But when Roger went to his home, his mother shouted at him and took him to the wizard and hit him, she also asked him to give Roger his smell back the wizard gave the smell back, but this end was not liked by Jo as she thought the Roger was the hero and he must smell good.

Jo stuck on her point that the wizard must hit mommy back and teach her lesson, she called stupid mommy by Jack insisted that it was the wizard that was hit, not the mother because he did not want the Jo will do according to her will in future and must not revolt against them. As whatever the parents decide is good.
